Killed by the Cars.

On Thursday night last Menzio Klock, a German, aged 40 years, was run over and literally cut in fragments by the South west Atlantic Express between Manlius and DeWitt. The accident was discovered after daylight Friday morning by the hands of a western bound freight train. The remains were horribly mangled, portions being found along the tracks for some distance. The identity of the deceased was established by a man named Fisher, of Manlius, who recognized the hat and clothing of the deceased, Klock having purchased some groceries from Fisher Thursday evening, and which were found in the vicinity of the mangled remains. After purchasing the provisions Klock started for home, which was the last seen of him. Deceased leaves a wife and one child.

Friday morning track hands found a portion of a pair of pants covered with blood, just east of this station, doubtless a portion of the clothing of deceased carried here by the train which caused his death.
